

APPALACHIAN TIGER BEETLE
Cicindela ancocisconensis

Habitat

These beetles live along streams in forests on the sandy and pebbly shores of rivers and streams.

Food

They eat small insects.

Predator

Birds, spiders, dragonflies, amphibians, and reptiles

Reproduction

They dig a small hole in the sand and lay a single egg in it before covering it up.

Where are they today?

These beetles are not common in Manhattan due to a lack of habitat.